WHAT TO DO IF YOU’RE PULLED OVER BY THE POLICE
BECAUSE LET’S IN A DICK
BECAUSE LET’S FACE IT, WE LIVE IN A COUNTRY WHERE PEOPLE WHO ARE SUPPOSED TO HELP US ARE SUPPOSED TO HELP US FROM THOSE WHO ARE SUPPOSED TO HELP US.
This content is intended to serve as general information, not legal advice. This zine plainly describes the law and the protections you are afforded under it. However, in some situations, merely knowing and following the law will not serve as sufficient protection. In these cases, trusting your intuition and consulting with a lawyer may be the best course of action.

IF YOU’RE PULLED OVER
BY THE POLICE...

- Find a safe place to pull over as soon as possible
- Turn off the car and place your hands on the wheel or dashboard
- Try your best to be polite and calm
- Make no sudden movements, and keep your hands within view
- Don’t search for your license and registration until asked, because it may look like you’re trying to hide something
- If possible, take note of officers’ badge numbers, names, and patrol car numbers

The responsibility of de-escalation should not fall on private citizens—it should be the job of the police. But we cannot always assume that the actions of officers will respect the safety or rights of the people they’re interacting with.
If asked, you must give the officer your name and provide them with your license and registration. If given a ticket, you must sign it. You do not have to answer any of the officer’s other questions, including those about your immigration status, where you’re traveling, and what you’re doing.

Remember: Lying to the police is a crime, but invoking your right to remain silent is not.

TRY
"I’m asserting my 5th Amendment right to remain silent”

OR
"I invoke my Miranda right to remain silent”
RECORDING

It is legal to record your interaction with the police.

When pulled over, you can set your phone to record and place it in your cup holder.

Officers may not legally order you to stop recording, demand to view your footage, confiscate your phone, or delete your photos and video.

Be aware: Some officers may unlawfully arrest you for refusing to stop recording. You should weigh the personal risk of being arrested (including the risk of being searched upon arrest) with the benefit of continuing to record.

SEARCHES & WARRANTS

The 4th Amendment protects us from unreasonable search and seizure.

If an officer does not have a warrant or probable cause, you do not have to agree to a search of your car.

You must verbalize that you do not consent. Say, “I do not consent to a search.”

Your refusal to consent to a search may not be used against you in the court of law.

In order for an officer to search your car without a warrant or the driver’s consent, they must have probable cause (something illegal or suspicious in plain view or that can be smelled, a positive alert by drug dogs, suspicious behavior by the driver, etc.)

Although an officer may pat down a driver and any passengers that they believe may be armed and dangerous, a warrant is required to do a full search of a person’s clothing and body.
IF YOU'RE ARRESTED

Even if you believe an arrest is unlawful, follow the orders of the officer. In Texas, resisting an arrest, even those that are unlawful, is a crime.

Say that you wish to remain silent, and ask for a lawyer immediately. Staying silent and asking for a lawyer does not imply guilt. Do not say anything, sign anything, or make any decisions without a lawyer. If you do not have a lawyer, you have the right to be provided a free one. Exception: If asked, you must truthfully tell officers your name, birthday, and address.

It is your right to know what you are being arrested for. You may ask the officer what crime you are being accused of committing.

When arrested, you have the right to make a local phone call. If you call a lawyer, the police can not legally listen. If you call anyone else, they probably will listen. If you are unable to reach someone, you are allowed additional calls until you are able to successfully contact someone.

If you are detained by immigration officials, try your best to stay calm, and do not resist arrest.

Regardless of your citizenship or immigration status, you have the right to remain silent. You can tell agents that you'll only answer questions in the presence of a lawyer, although a lawyer will not be provided to you for free.

Immigration officers must have probable cause in order to make a lawful arrest.

At border crossings, officers do not need a warrant to conduct searches of your belongings or your car.

If asked by an agent to show your immigration documents and you have them, show them to the officer.

OR DETAINED...
